EDUCATION

Ph.D., Politics, The New School for Social Research (NSSR), *Expected May 2026

Fields: American Politics, Political Theory

Dissertation: The Costs of Cost-Benefit Analysis: Competing Ideologies, Public Engagement, and Federal Housing Policy, 2009–2021

Summary: What did “neoliberal policy” mean at federal housing agencies? Did that policy “era” end? I argue that while neoliberalism structured federal agencies’ decisions and the range of housing policy outcomes from 2009–2021, conservative and reactionary ideological cues significantly shaped them as well. Through comprehensive review of two agencies’ rulemakings, right-wing ideologies often complemented or converged with neoliberal policy tendencies, presaging our present.
